

A Light for The One You Adore

My life was short – I lived only 7 days, but I had my mission.

“Will you watch with me for one hour?”, He asks.

“Yes, I will, Sir. I will watch with you for 168 hours! This is what I was made for.”

What a privilege it was to stand so close beside ‘The One You Adore’ on His altar and to keep watch with you when you came to sit with Him that week. My only duty was to keep my flame burning to be a light for you and for The One You Adore.

I saw you when you entered the chapel and gazed at Him. I saw your knee bend and your head bow and I knew you were where you needed to be. And I knew He was glad that you were there.

I always liked when you came close because that is when I knew I was doing my job. Often I could see my reflection in the glimmer of your eyes and I knew my light was at least helping you see The One You Adore. You may have noticed that sometimes I danced a little at the joy I sensed in you; other times I stood perfectly still, as the intensity of your spirit captured me. I watched Him, too, as He gazed back at you, in awe of His beautiful and perfect creation – one who He adores.

Now, my flame is gone and another takes my place. My 7 days standing beside The One You Adore reminded me that I was just a mere candle and my short-lived light is no match to yours. I saw it in your eyes each time as you bowed to leave. You have a special light – much brighter than mine – because it can go with you. You can take it to those who are not able to visit The One You Adore and He can be with them through you. You, too, are a light for The One You Adore!

I pray that you will never lose the light that He has given to you and I hope that you continue to come often to visit Him. I know He will be glad when you do.
